The illustrated guide to a Ph.D.

Matt Might, a professor in Computer Science at the University of Utah, created The Illustrated Guide to a Ph.D. to explain what a Ph.D. is to new and aspiring graduate students.

[Matt has licensed the guide for sharing with special terms under the Creative Commons license.]

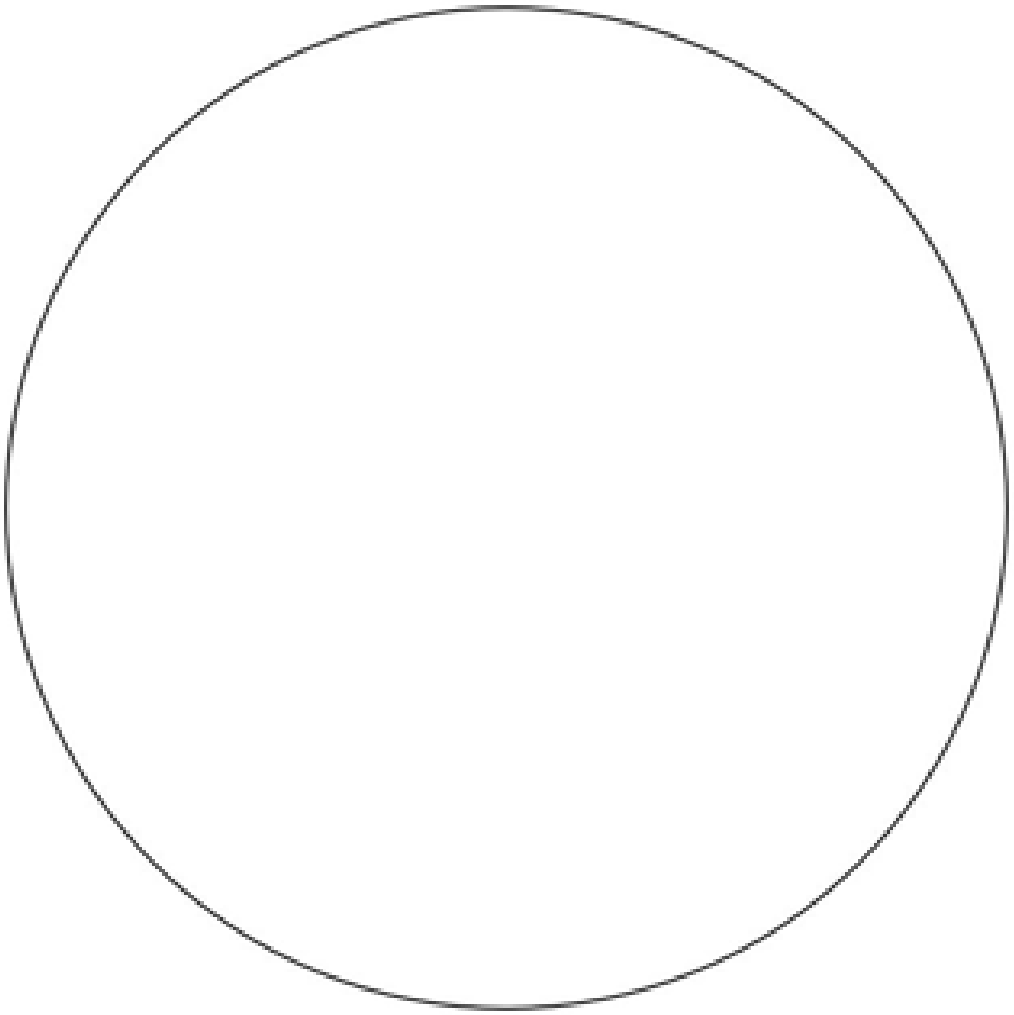
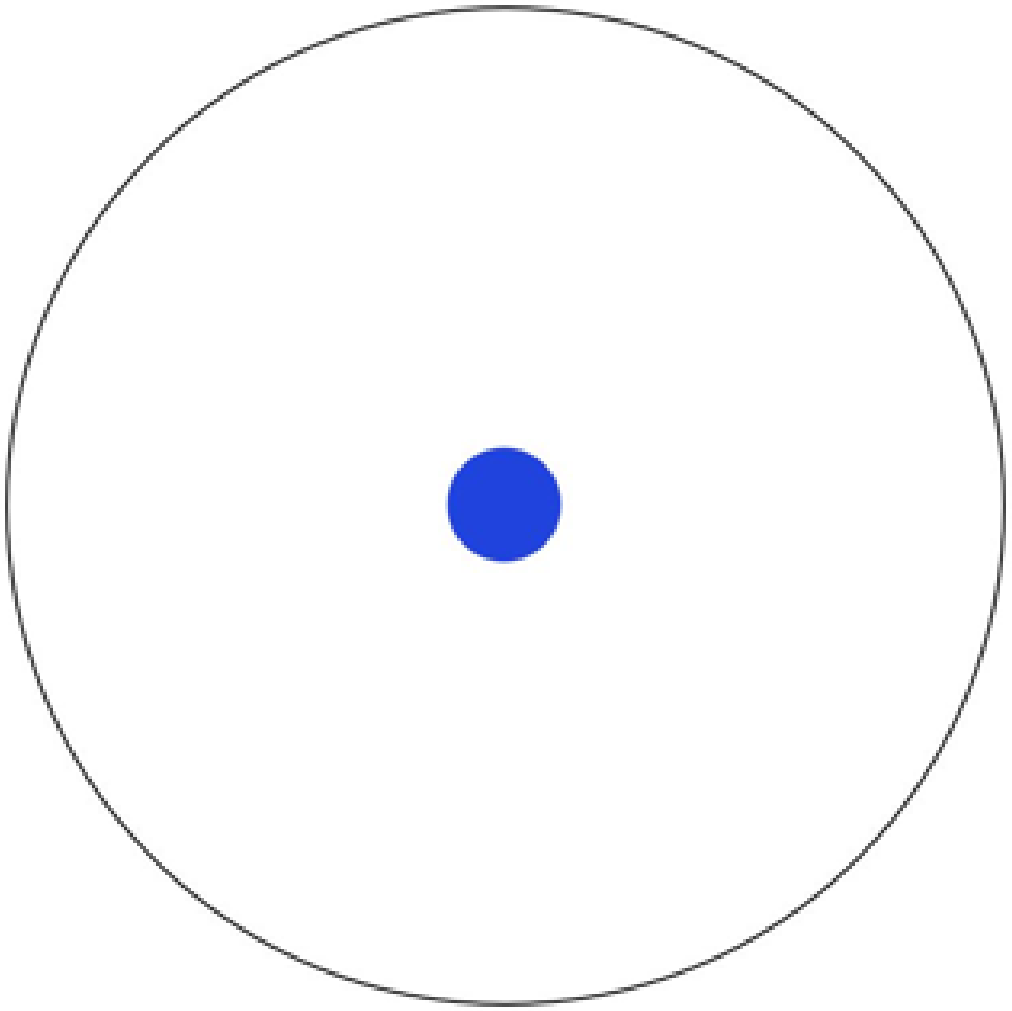
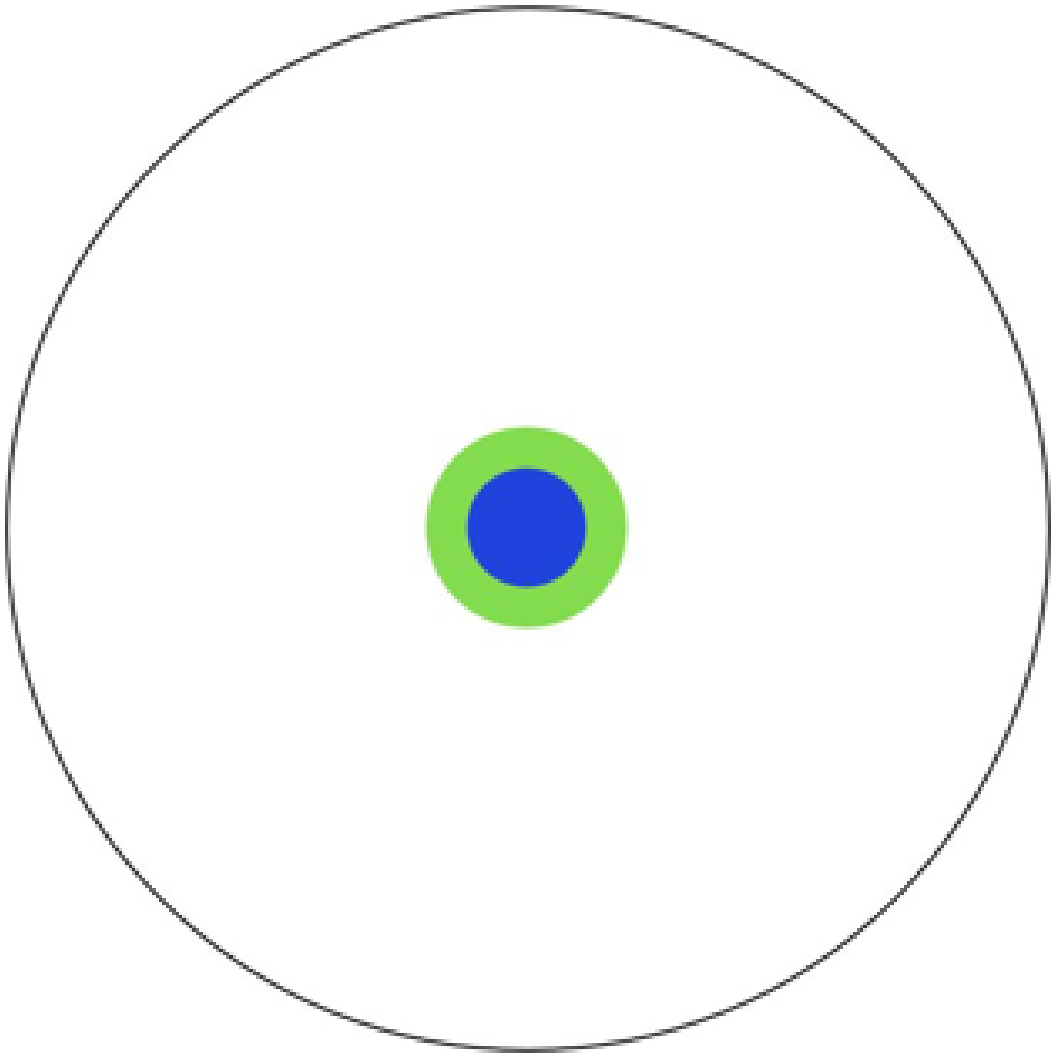
Imagine a circle that contains all of human knowledge:



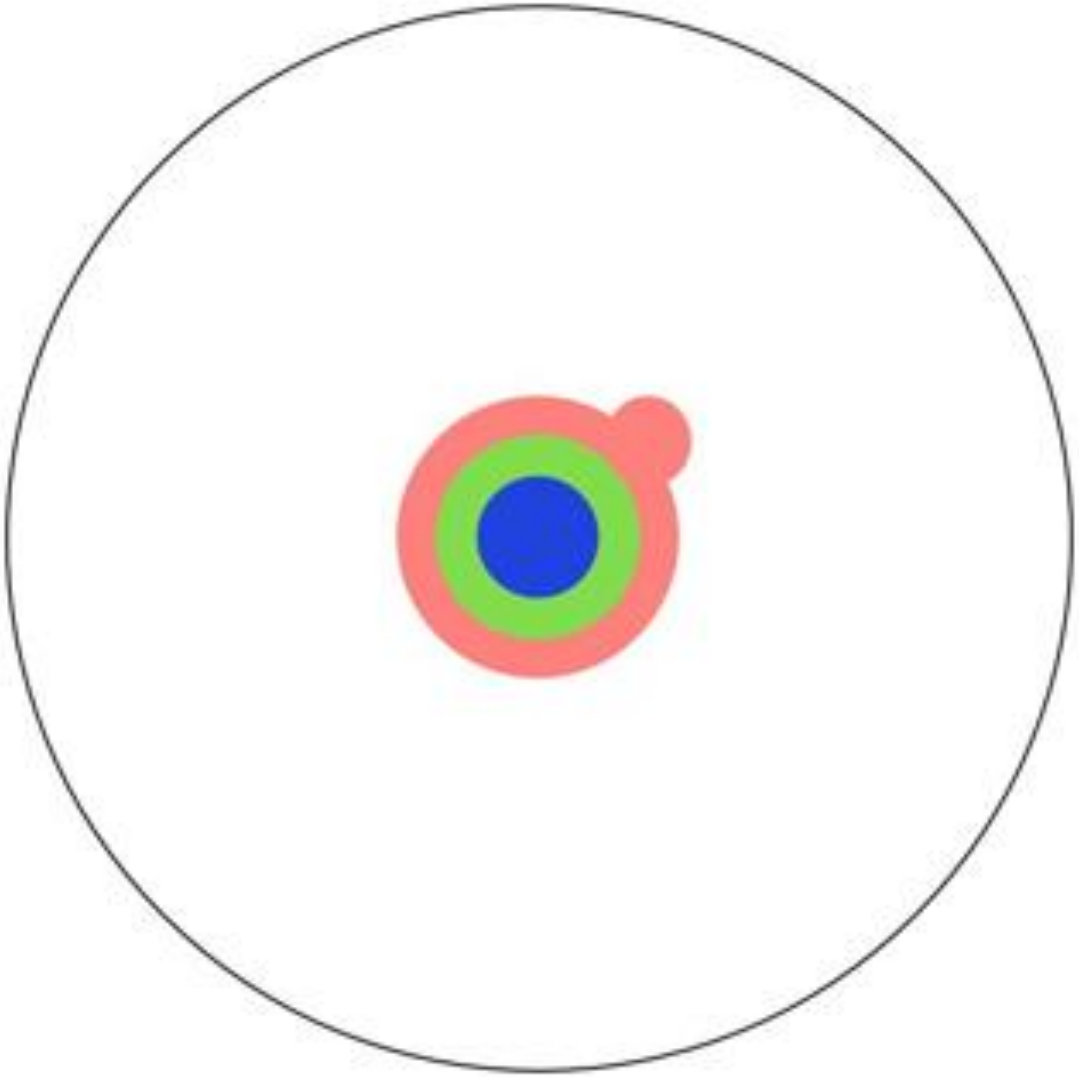
By the time you finish elementary school, you know a little:



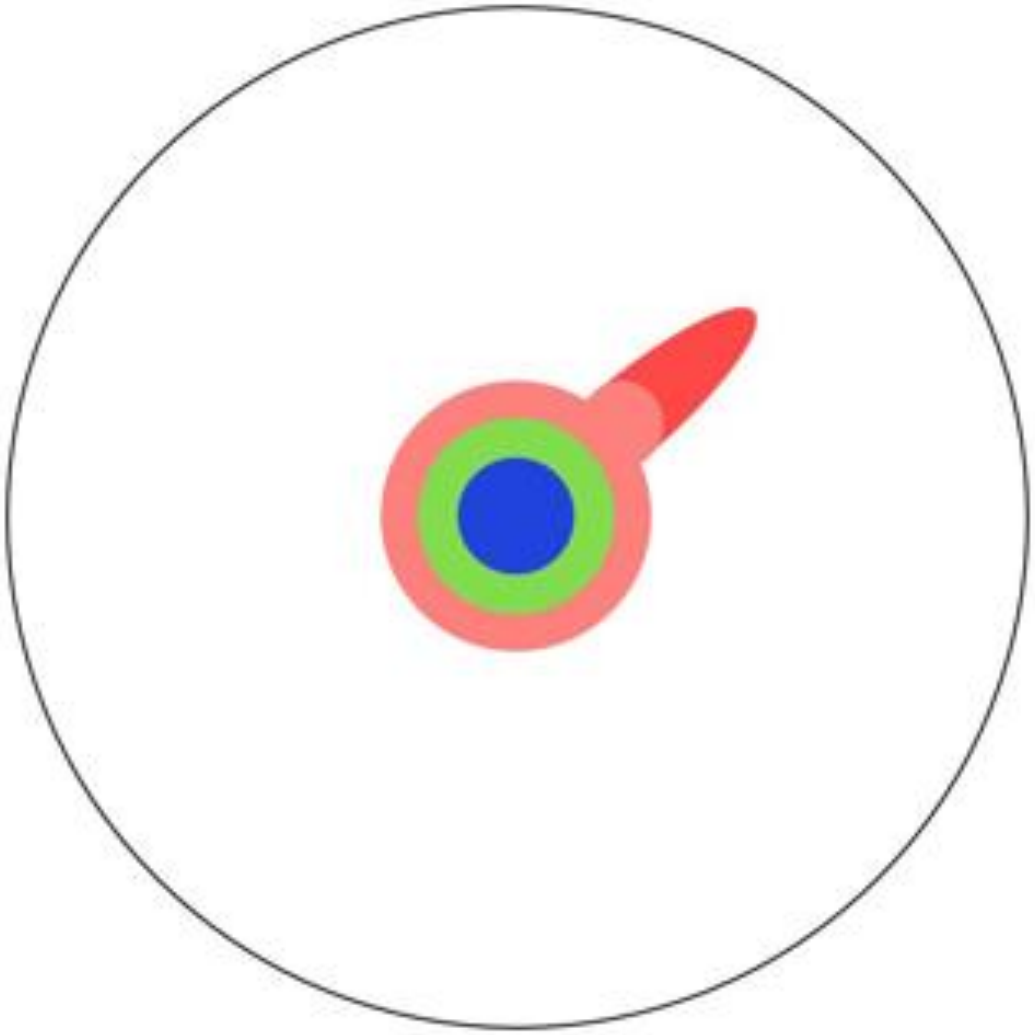
By the time you finish high school, you know a bit more:



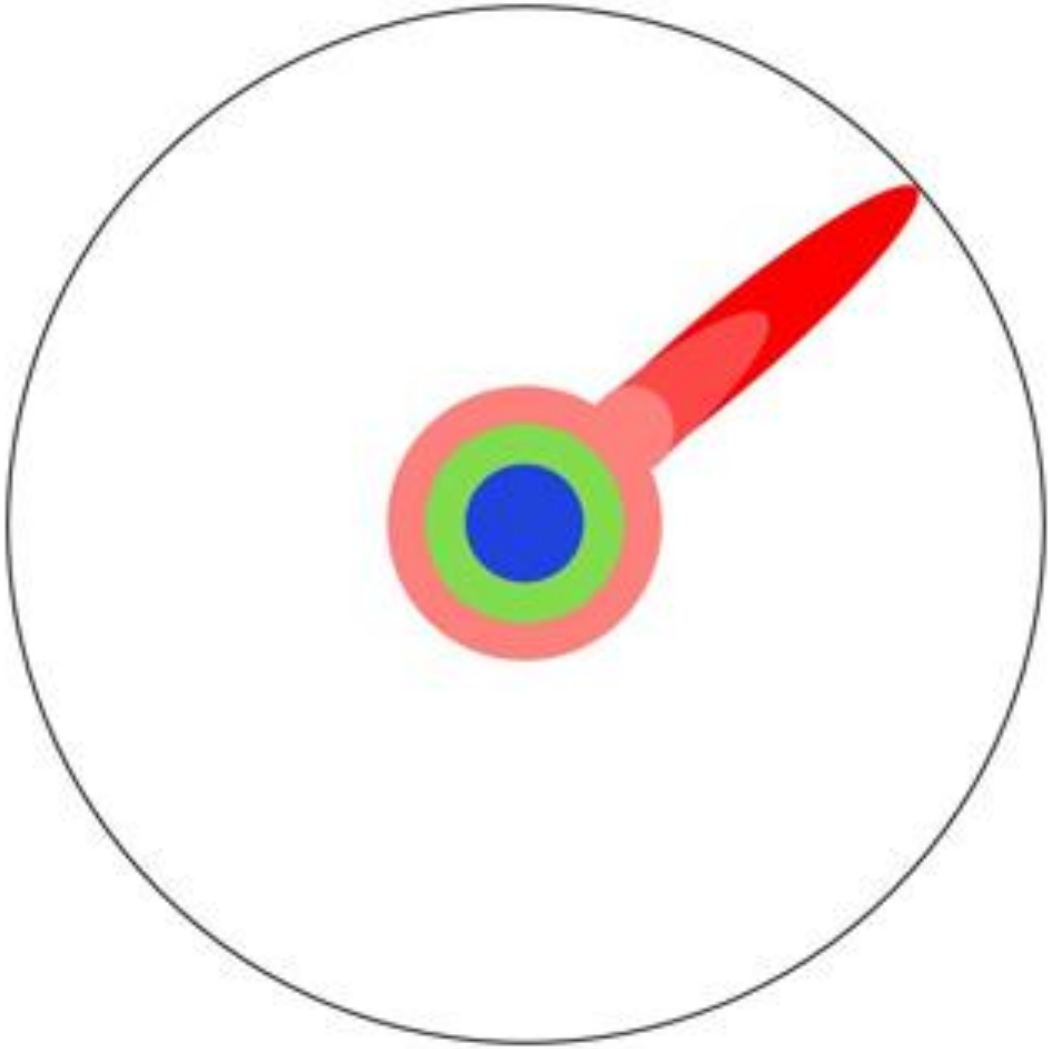
With a bachelor's degree, you gain a specialty:



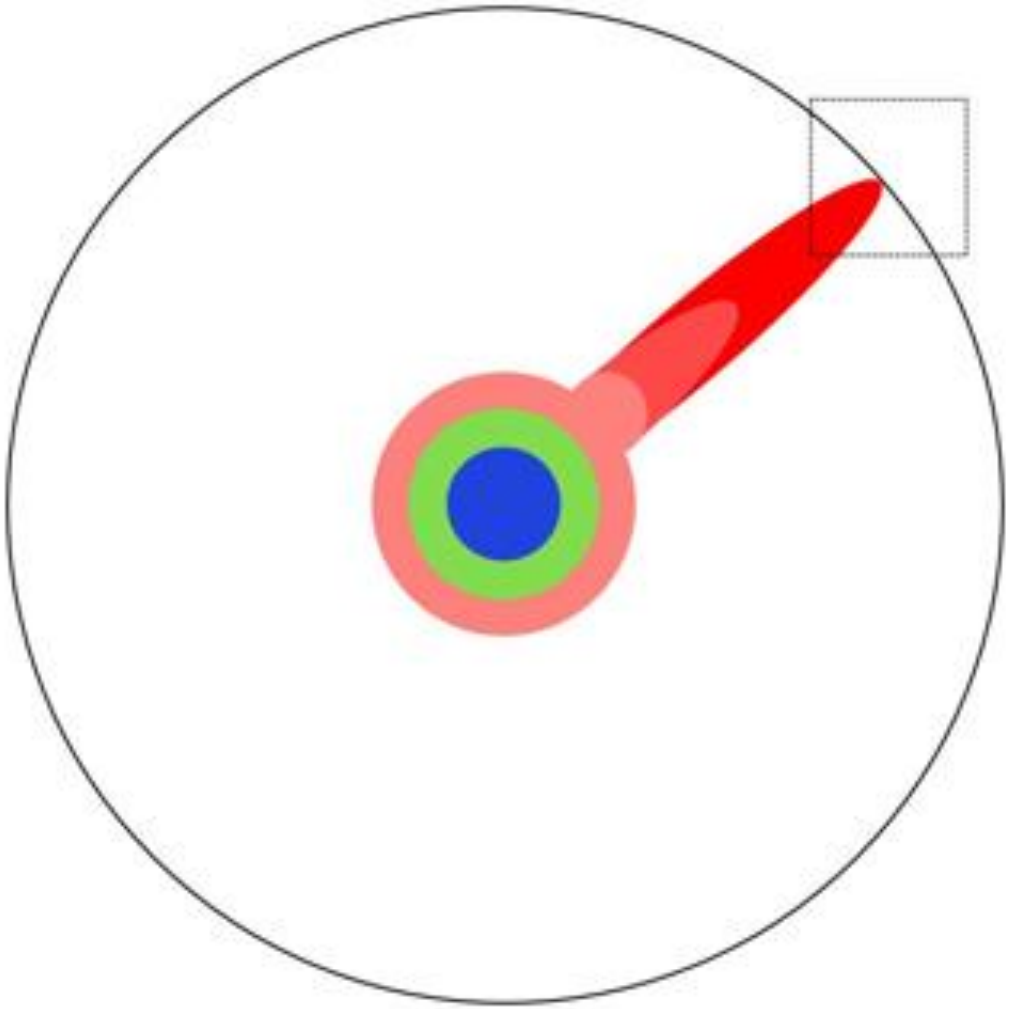
A master's degree deepens that specialty:



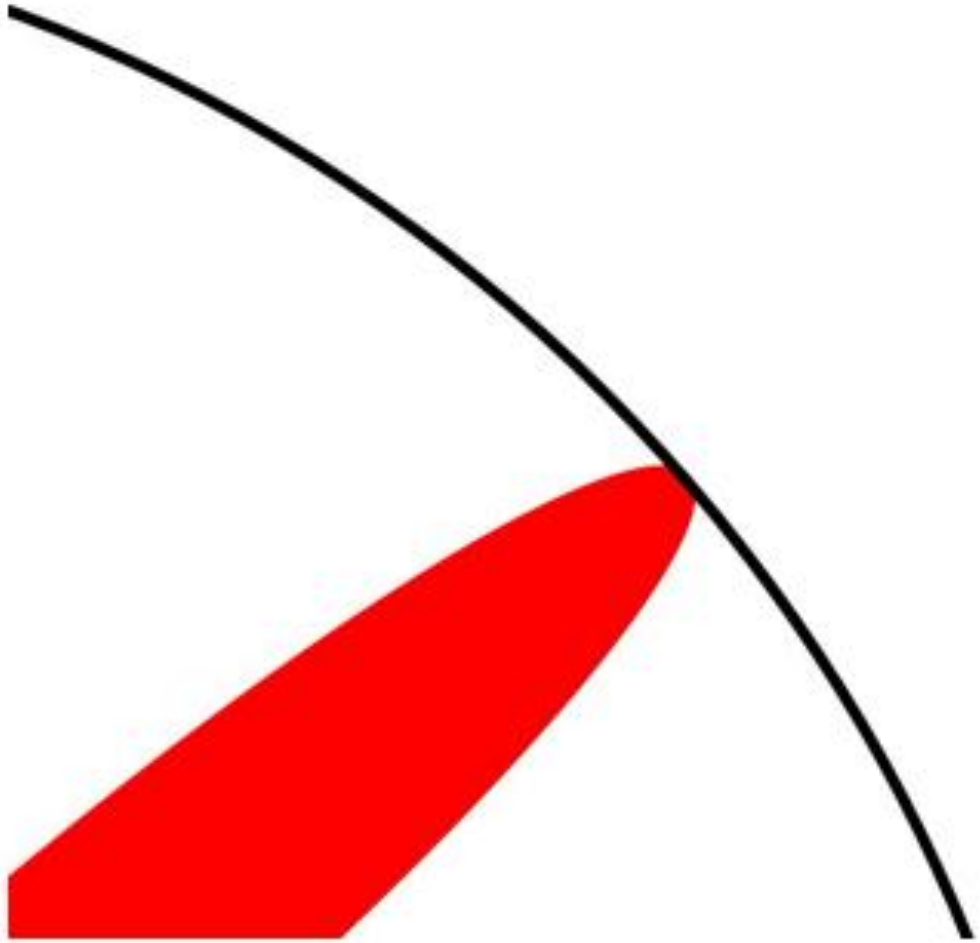
Reading research papers takes you to the edge of human knowledge:



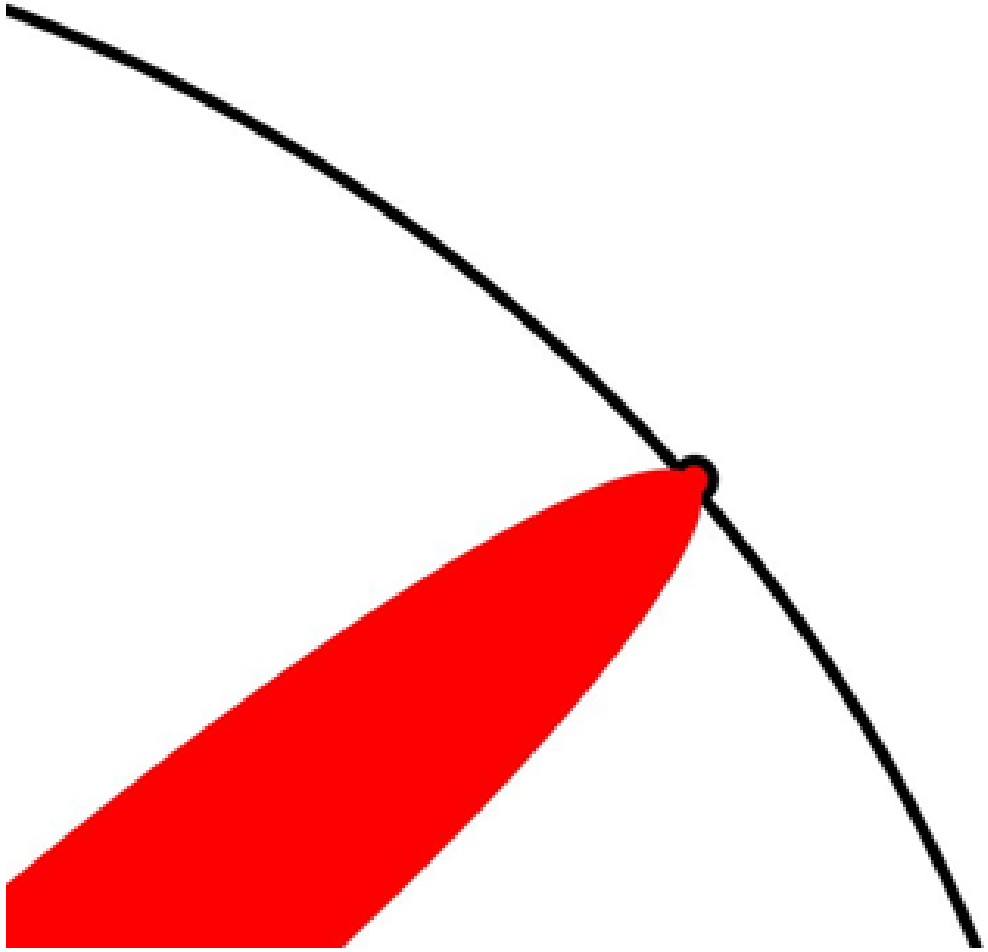
Once you're at the boundary, you focus:



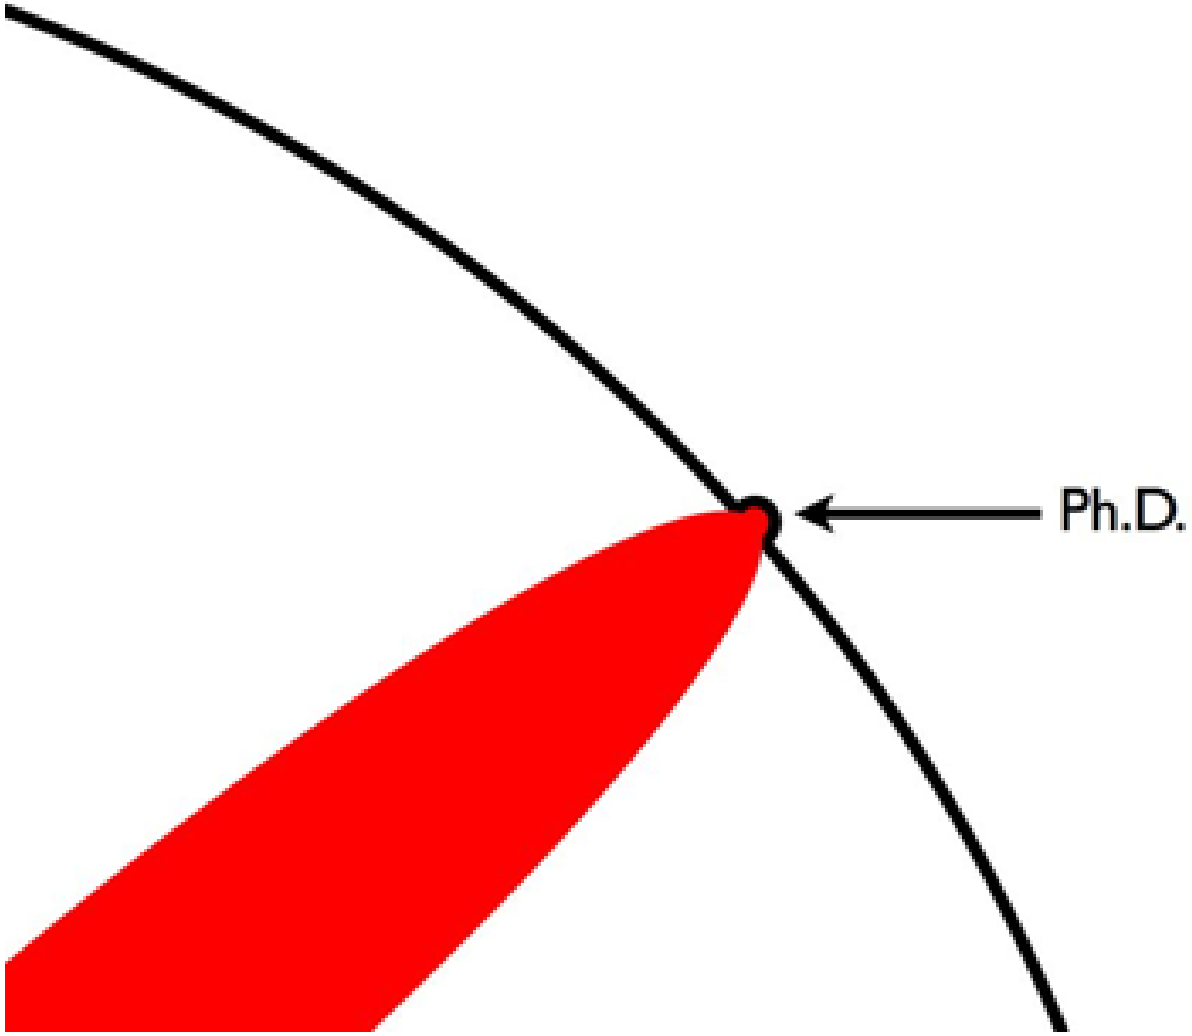
You push at the boundary for a few years:



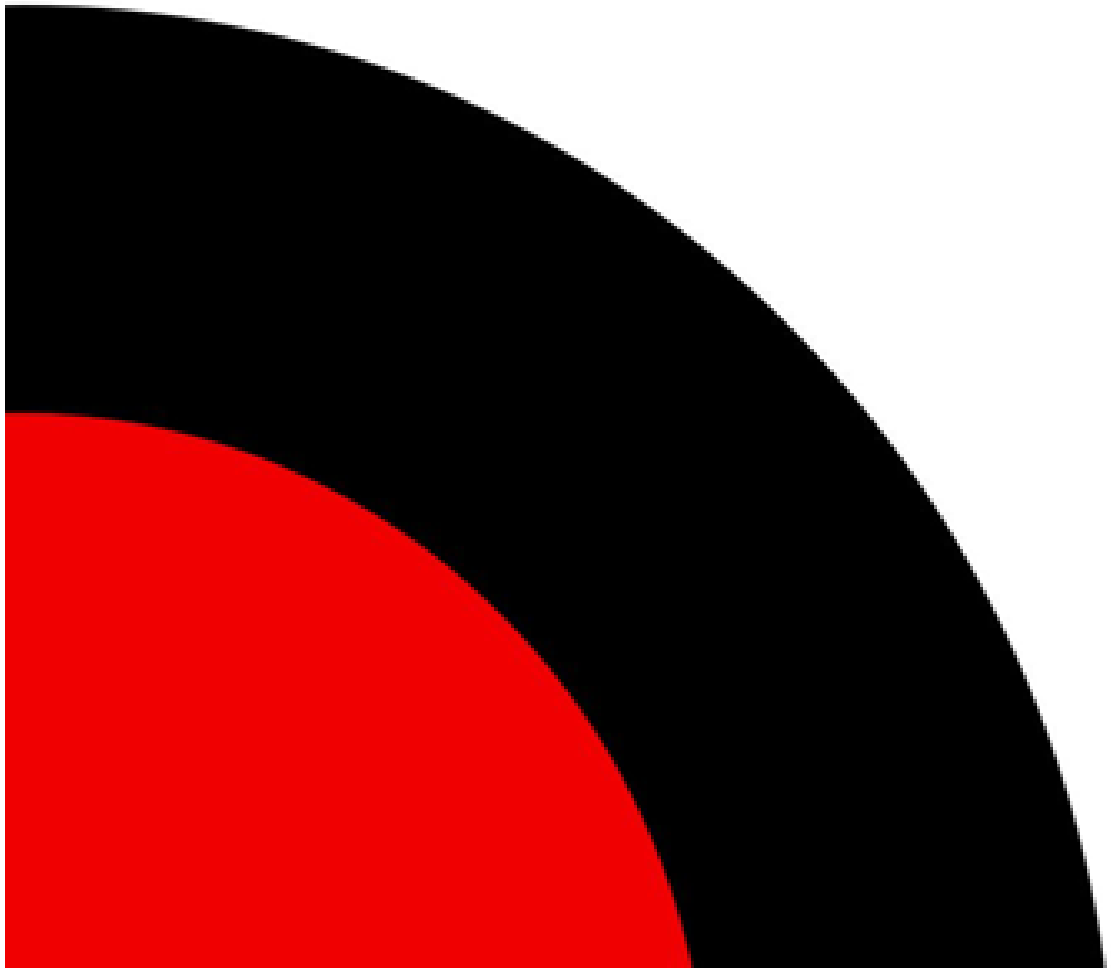
Until one day, the boundary gives way:



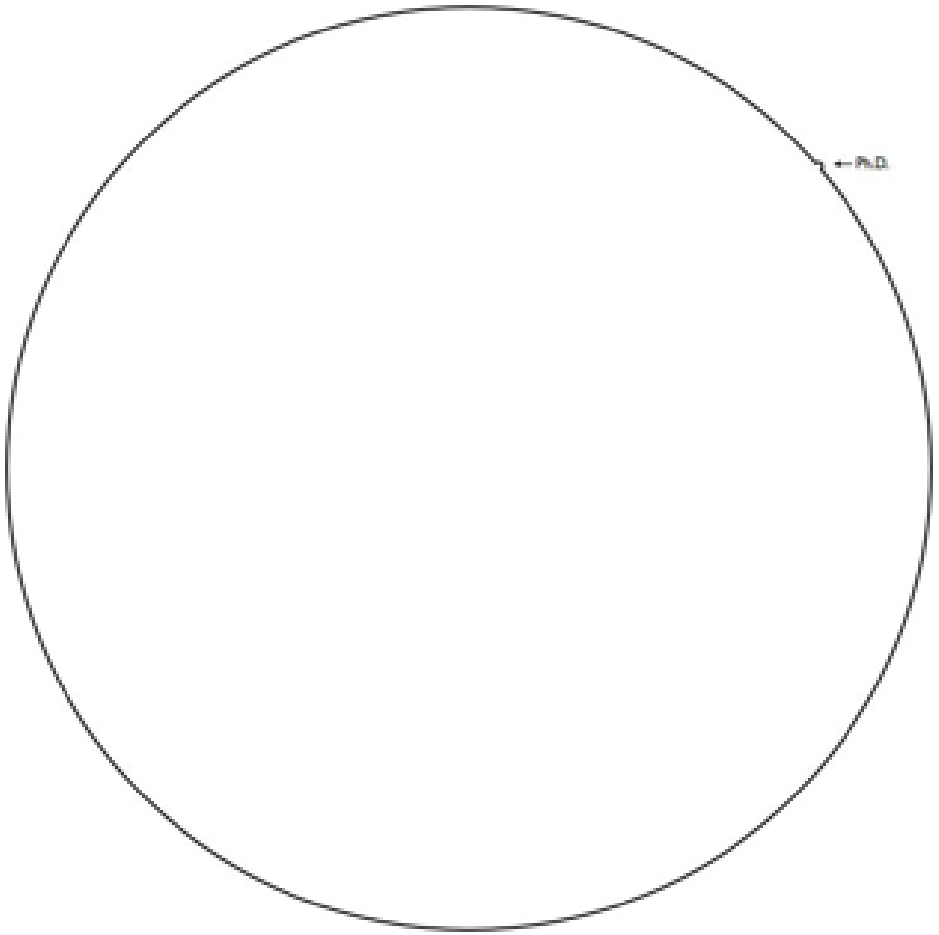
And, that dent you've made is called a Ph.D.:



Of course, the world looks different to you now:



So, don't forget the bigger picture:



Keep pushing.

Island of Knowledge

Your PhD can create a little island in the sea

Even if your contribution feels small, it can have a huge impact on your entire environment

You can create an island of knowledge

Keep going!

Digital Services - logging onto different systems

1) User ID - your User ID is the part of your email address before the '@'

For example, if your Coventry University student email address is custudent@uni.coventry.ac.uk then your UserID is custudent

For Solar, CU Moodle use your UserID

2) Coventry University ID - UserID@coventry.ac.uk (NOT your student email)

For Library Locate, Student Portal and ReCap event bookings.

3) Coventry University student email address - UserID@uni.coventry.ac.uk

For Microsoft Office365 Services (Microsoft Teams or Outlook Email) use your CU student email address.
MSOffice365 can be accessed from https://portal.office.com

IT Services – Aula

An Aula space has been made available by the central university team for all students (including undergraduate and taught students) therefore the information is not tailored for postgraduate researchers.

We are working with IT Services to prevent postgraduate researchers from being auto-enrolled on the Aula induction.
